How Do I Choose the Right Senior Living Community?

WHAT TO LOOK FOR WHEN TOURING

Choosing a senior living community is an important decision. The right fit supports safety, well-being and quality of life—today and as needs change.

1. What is included in the monthly price?

Ask about meals, housekeeping, transportation, activities, care services and additional fees.

2. What happens if my needs change?

Can additional services be added? Could I transition to another level of care within the community?

3. What support is available—and when?

Ask what staff are available during the day, overnight and on weekends—and who responds to urgent needs or emergencies.

4. What does everyday life really look like?

Look at meals, activities, social opportunities and transportation. Notice how residents spend their time and how staff interact with them.

5. What could require me to move?

Ask what health, safety or care changes the community can no longer accommodate.

6. How does the community feel when I visit?

Do residents seem comfortable and engaged? Does it feel welcoming, respectful and like somewhere you could call home?

Don't Forget to Ask: "What could cause my monthly rate to increase after I move in?"
